

Deborah Panchisin

Dr. Deborah Panchisin brings more than 38 years of experience in public school education. Since 2024, she has served as the Chief Academic Officer for ASPIRA Delaware. Prior to this role, Dr. Panchisin was the principal of ASPIRA Charter High School for three years and spent 22 years as the Director of Curriculum, Instruction, and Assessment in the Appoquinimink School District.

Her career spans a wide range of roles including classroom teacher, instructional coach, professional developer, consultant, and adjunct instructor. She has also served as an adjunct faculty member at Wilmington University, teaching master's-level courses in the College of Education.

Dr. Panchisin earned her B.S. and M.I. degrees from the University of Delaware and her Ed.D. in Education Innovation and Leadership from Wilmington University. Outside of her professional work, she is a devoted wife and mother who enjoys spending time with her family, reading, crafting, and relaxing anywhere near the water.